Excerpt: . and that only the day before, as he was at work loading hay, Mr. Putnam stood at a long distance from him, with a hayfork in his hand, and that, in a mysterious manner, the fork entered his arm, inflicting a severe wound, the effects of which were now visible. These wonderful events excited the astonishment of the clergyman, who sent for the farmer, and requested his attendance on the afternoon of the next day. A few minutes after Trellison s departure, the farmer entered the room, and Tound his minister in a reclining posture, and apparently absorbed in deep meditation. I have come, said he, Mr. Parris, in obedience to your summons, and wish to know your pleasure. Satan is among my flock, Mr. Putnam, and as the good shepherd careth for his sheep, I. have feared you may be entangled in his wiles. In my belief, and I am sorry to say it, said the farmer, Satan has more to do with the minister than among the people. Dare you speak thus to the Lord s ambassador, his commissioned and anointed servant, whom he has clothed with the helmet of salvation, and the shield of faith, that he may quench the fiery darts of the devil? You claim a high character, Mr. Parris; but I have heard of wolves in sheeps clothing, and the course you are pursuing, leaves me in little doubt whose servant you are. What other language than...
