Probably no one will dispute the statement that the greatest problem before us as educators at this time is the moral development of the boys and girls in our schools to-day because they will be our citizens to-morrow; to develop the moral individual, who wills to be, himself, a strong member of the social whole; to give his best of physical and intellectual strength; in short, to lead the individual to his greatest good to himself and to his country. Considering conditions as they exist in America to-day, would it be the part of wisdom to immerse ourselves in our own affairs in order that others may attend to theirs ? Is there another country in which cooperation and interdependence play so great a part in the everyday life of all as in America? Great changes have come to us within comparatively few years. The...
